Product Description Praise for Aracelis Girmay: "[Girmay's] every loss" she calls them estrangements "is a yearning for connection across time and place; her every fragment is a bulwark against ruin." "O, The Oprah Magazine "In Aracelis Girmay we have a poet who collects, polishes, and shares stories with such brilliant invention, tenderness, and intellectual liveliness that it is understandable Praise for Aracelis Girmay: "[Girmay's] every loss" she calls them estrangements "is a yearning for connection across time and place; her every fragment is a bulwark against ruin." "O, The Oprah Magazine "In Aracelis Girmay we have a poet who collects, polishes, and shares stories with such brilliant invention, tenderness, and intellectual liveliness that it is understandable that we think of her as the blessed curator of our collective histories. There is in her art the vulnerability of one who lives inside of the stories that she gathers in this remarkable collection. Her poems set off alarms even as they transform the world she inhabits, showing us, in the process, exactly what she asks of Romare Bearden's art: "how not to // assign all blackness near the sea / a captivity." This is one of the many sweet contradictions in the black maria, which "is a black flag / wounding the pastoral." I am deeply thankful that we have a poet of her unique and singular talent writing today." "Kwame Dawes Taking its name from the moon's dark plains, misidentified as seas by early astronomers, the black maria investigates African diasporic histories, the consequences of racism within American culture, and the question of human identity. Central to this project is a desire to recognize the lives of Eritrean refugees who have been made invisible by years of immigration crisis, refugee status, exile, and resulting statelessness. The recipient of a 2015 Whiting Award for Poetry, Girmay's newest collection elegizes and celebrates life, while wrestling with the humanistic notion of seeing beyond: seeing violence, seeing grace, and seeing each other better." "to the sea" great storage house, history on which we rode, we touched the brief pulse of your fluttering pages, spelled with salt & life, your rage, your indifference your gentleness

washing our feet, all of you going on whether or not we live, to you we bring our carnations yellow & pink, how they float like bright sentences at the top of your memory's dark hair
